

The Office of Equality of the Consell de Formentera has begun work to develop the second Gender Equality Plan which will be in force until 2027.

Ana Juan, president and equality councillor of the Consell de Formentera, affirmed that with assessment of the first plan, in force between 2019 and 2022, now complete, work on the second plan is now under way. The president pointed out that "the first plan grew out of a need to dynamise and set targets in local awareness building, training and equality work", as stated in Law 11/2016 [28 July] on gender equality.

Questionnaire

With implementation of the first plan complete, the Office of Equality tracked the various actions in collaboration with heads of distinct offices of the Consell to obtain information and monitor implementation. This evaluation is the starting point for Formentera's next Gender Equality Plan for 2024-2027. To conduct this study, a questionnaire has been created so that islanders can give their opinion on equality on the island.

President Juan encouraged the people of Formentera to take part. "Islanders' collaboration is key to tailoring the plan to people's needs and because it will help us set the lines of action to advance towards a society that is a more egalitarian and respectful between men and women", said the president.

The questionnaire is anonymous and confidential and can be answered at this link in Catalan and also in Spanish.

The questionnaire will also be shared across the official online profiles of the Consell de Formentera, associations and, physically, with posters in various corners of the island.
